Mother Battles High Tides to Secure Aid

SCARBOROUGH, Maine (AP)—Sobbing, gasping, Maitha Cole, 24, stumbled onto a beach here yesterday and told of a four hour battle with tides, winds and waves to get aid for her boat-wrecked family.

The life-jacket clad woman related they were washed from a frail 15-foot outboard boat in heavy seas.

Hours later, the young Jenkinson, Pa., housewife heard that her son, 22-month-old Jeffrey, became the only fatality of the mishap.

Her grief-stricken husband, Thomas O., 25, fought tears as he explained how those tilting to the boat tried to keep the baby's head above water.

All, including the child, had life jackets. They smaw to tiny, uninhabited Stratton Island when the boat sank.

Cole, Coast Guard alman said, was still trying to revive the child by artificial respiration when spotted by a helicopter.

His wife's battle with the sea was across a three mile stretch of open Atlantic. She fought her way to the mainland from a point between Stratton and Eagle islands off famed Old Orchard Beach.

"She certainly must have been a powerful swimmer," one coast guardman said, "we had enough trouble getting out the island with our 25 horsepower boat."

Dr. Walter D. Mazzucane who treated Mrs. Cole for shock and immersion, said:

"High winds and heavy tides kept nearly all the swimmers out of the water today."

Included in the Eagle Island bound picnic party were Theodore Chase, 25, of Springfield, Mass., a friend of the family, and Mrs. Cole's mother, Mrs. E. T. Manley, of the fashionable Springfield suburb of Longmeadow, Mass.

The boat high seas breaking over the boat forced them to turn back to the mainland about noon. Moments later they were swamped, Mrs. Cole came ashore some four hours later.

Russia Starts Atom Tests in Siberia

WASHINGTON (UP) — Russia resumed testing of big nuclear weapons at its Siberian proving ground yesterday just as Moscow radio was rejecting a compromise Western offer to suspend the tests for two years.

A brief bulletin this morning from the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission hinted that Russia is testing H-bombs or megaton-size weapons. It said the explosion was "of substantial size."

A Moscow radio broadcast last night rejects the new Western offer to suspend the tests for two years, as Russia has insisted. Moscow's official voice repeated Russia's demand that the suspension of tests not be linked to overall disarmament terms.

Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission said in the announcement:

"The Soviet Union has resumed testing of nuclear weapons at its Siberian proving ground. A detonation of substantial size took place on Aug. 22."

A spokesman for the commission said he could give no further details.

It was the 25th in a series of government announcements on the detection of Soviet test explosions. President Truman made the first on Sept. 3, 1949.

The latest was made by Strauss last April 16, reporting what proved to be the final of a series of five detected explosions in the spring testing schedule at Russia's mid-Siberian proving grounds.

The tests are understood to be conducted in a desolate area north of Pakistan and Afghanistan and west of China.

The Western powers have made clear that they also intend to continue tests in their development of nuclear weapons until an international agreement is reached, and put into effect, to ban testing as part of a broader first-step disarmament pact.

Russia has insisted on stopping the tests as a basic objective, in itself, without tying the suspension to a broader disarmament agreement.

The speed with which the United States detected and reported the new Soviet explosion makes it clear that the test device was radioactively "dirty."

A "clean" H-bomb would not have shot enough radioactive debris into the high atmosphere to make detection as speedy and certain as it appears to have been.

Informal sources here believe the Russians have exploded roughly twice as many nuclear test weapons of all kinds—A-bombs and H-bombs—than the U.S. announcements referred to a test series rather than to individual shots.

The United States has exploded at least 33 nuclear devices, the British nine.

Labor Dispute Settled With Detroit Papers

DETROIT (AP) — A labor dispute which had halted publication at Detroit's three major daily papers since Monday was reported settled last night.

The afternoon Detroit News and the Detroit Times both said they planned Saturday editions. The morning Free Press said it would join the other two with regular Sunday editions.

Although there was no official confirmation from the Detroit Newspaper Publishers Assn., top officials at the three papers said "the strike is over."

Full editorial and mechanical staffs were called back to work despite the late hour of the reported settlement. There were no details available of what the settlement entailed.

The announcement of a settlement followed a day-long meeting between representatives of the publishers and a 10-man committee of editorial and craft unions at the three papers. They were joined late in the evening by James R. Hoffa, Teamsters vice president.

Hoffa flew in from Washington to take part in the negotiations. Just what part he played in the talks was not clear. It was not clear, however, that he came to the meeting with a proposal in hand. Details of the proposal were not known.

Hoffa's Teamsters Union members who drive the trucks that deliver the newspapers had been refusing to cross picket lines thrown up at the Detroit News building.

The International Mailers Union set up picket lines around the Detroit News last Saturday morning in protest of what it called the firing of 87 mailers.

The News called the dispute an illegal strike. It contended that its contract for mailing room workers was with the International Typographical Union and that it had no contract with the IMU.

The union called it a lockout. The two unions currently are locked in a jurisdictional battle. The IMU claims that all out of the news 170 mailing room employees are members of the IMU.

The case is pending before the National Labor Relations Board. The mailers who bundle the papers for delivery after they came off the presses were fired for refusing to work during a normal six-hour rest period between two 15-hour shifts.

The News said 67 were fired. IMU officials said the mailers refused to work because of "intense hardship." The company said it considered the men obligated to work because of an emergency due to machinery failure.

Unusual But a Plane Hits Train

CORONA, Calif. (AP)—Gene Maxwell's light plane is a wreck. It seems that a train hit it.

Maxwell, 31, was practicing landings when he lost power. He brushed some trees and made a near-perfect forced landing—except for one detail. He landed on the Santa Fe right-of-way.

While he was checking his plane and his only injury, scratched arm, he heard a train whistle. He and several bystanders were still trying to drag the two-seater off the tracks when a freight train, bound for Santa Ana, Calif., reached the scene.

Officers listed it as Corona's first train-vs.-airplane accident.

Two Men Die in Crash of Fighter Plane

PITTSBURGH (UP) — A converted World War I fighter plane crashed in flames today apparently while trying to avoid a collision with a commercial airliner coming in for a landing at Greater Pittsburgh airport.

Two men aboard the converted fighter, a twin-boom P-33, died in the burning wreckage. Their plane zoomed down from an estimated height of 2,700 feet and crashed in a field southeast of the airport.

State police said the fighter plane fliers were approaching the field, after a flight from Tulsa, Okla., when they swung near a TWA Constellation which had been cleared for a landing.

The Constellation, carrying 43 passengers and a crew of five, was completing a flight from Dayton, Ohio and St. Louis.

The TWA pilot, Arthur Sessl, said he noticed the fighter plane approaching from the left as he descended toward the runway. Sessl swung to the right to avoid a possible collision.

"The other ship dived," Sessl said, "but never came out of it." The crash occurred about a mile and a half from the east-west runway, near the spot where another TWA passenger plane crashed on Easter Sunday two years ago with a loss of more than 20 lives.

Miss Calvet 'Not Afraid' to Testify

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Screen star Corinne Calvet told newsmen today she was not afraid to testify about a Confidential magazine story that said she wore out two husbands with boudoir kindness.

"I don't mind testifying if it will help put an end to Confidential," she said, "even if it means embarrassment. I'm willing and ready to testify."

Miss Calvet was the first of some 100 subpoenaed film celebrities alerted to stand by for a call to the witness stand today in the criminal libel trial of Confidential and Whisper magazines.

She was put on two-hour bail to testify as a "defense witness" by the magazines' attorneys who are attempting to show all articles appearing in the magazine were true and published without malice.

The defense hoped to prove that the story, "you've heard about the birds and the bees but have you heard about Corinne Calvet?" was true in every spiny detail. The article appeared in the May 1955 issue of Confidential.

The criminal libel trial resumed today following a day's recess. Defense Attorney Arthur J. Crowley hinted that he would put Miss Calvet on the stand after the prosecution completed its cross-examination of defense witness Fred Meade, operator with his wife of Confidential's west coast "smut-gathering" bureau.

Miss Calvet has charged out of court that the story about her was "absolutely untrue." However, the defense boasted that it has a transcript of a television interview in which the actress allegedly admitted her bedroom escapades described in the yarn and in her French accent said she was "flattered" by the account.

However, Miss Calvet scoffed — also out of court — at the defense claim. She said she appeared on the television show but never authenticated any part of the story which the state has singled out with 11 other articles as the basis of its libel charge.

The story dealt with Miss Calvet's marriages to John Bromfield and Jeff Stone. It was read into the court record by the prosecution.

Regarding her marriage to Bromfield the story said:

"From the day of their elopement to Las Vegas and marriage in 1948, she came close to killing him with boudoir kindness. . . . It was that love light in Corinne's eyes. It blazed away night and day and in the dawned places. Like the torch of liberty it never seemed to go out."

As for Stone, the story related:

"He began to show signs of wear and tear even faster than John had."

"We'd be out driving in the car," he later told a friend, "I'd turn around to look at her and sure enough, there'd be that light in her eyes."

The article described how Stone dived into a swimming pool at the same time the actress did and they "came together some five feet under the surface."

"My God," Stone was quoted in the story as saying, "I could tell what was on her mind even under water."

Government Taxes Is $545 Per Person

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government—federal, state and local—took a record $545 in taxes from every man, woman and child in the nation during the last fiscal year.

All three government levels also set a record in spending a total of $600 a head.

They more than made up the difference by taking in from general revenue other than taxes another $79 a head. That brought the total per capita take from general revenue to $224.

The Census Bureau said Thursday night in releasing the report that the per capita breakdown on taxes was: Federal $308; state $90; local $77.

Demos Ponder Civil Rights Strategy

By LEWIS GULICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans stood by today with their new civil rights compromise plan while Democrats pondered strategy.

Many members of Congress want an end to the impasse so they can go home. Some legislators already have left.

Rep. Keating (R-N.Y.), a leader of GOP civil rights forces, said he expects the Democrats "will give us some word" today on the Republican compromise, put forward

GREAT PROMISES from the BIBLE

The Lord thy God is a merciful God; he will not forsake thee, neither destroy thee.
Deuteronomy 4:31

To all those families in this community who count on us in times of sorrow, we extend thanks and dedicate our continued efforts to serve.
